

SOCKET APPARATUS WITH ACTUATION VIA PIVOTAL MOTION

Abstract

A socket apparatus includes lid pivotally coupled to a socket. When the lid is in an open position, contacts in the socket are actuated to an open position for receiving an IC. When the lid is closed, levers coupled to the lid cease actuating the contacts, causing them to close and therefore contact pins of the IC for testing.